Peptides are chains of amino acids which are the building blocks of the body's proteins. Growth hormone releasing peptides stimulate the pituitary gland's increased natural production of the body's own growth hormone. Their main function is to signal the body to release its own natural mechanisms to relieve symptoms or conditions. Anti-Aging peptides have dozens of uses but the most common uses are helping to build muscle, reduce fat, improve energy, improve sexual function, and to reduce GI and musculoskeletal inflammation. Peptides may enhance your physiology so that you can "beat the clock". This will allow you to be at a biologically younger age no matter your actual calendar age. A typical therapy is suggested of 3-6 months to maximize the effectiveness of the benefits, however you can continue a 1 year course at a time.
